

Privacy Policy

GRISWOLD COMMUNICATIONS PRIVACY POLICY

Griswold Communications is strongly committed to protecting your privacy online when visiting our website. This privacy statement outlines the information Griswold Communications will collect and how we will use that information.

For each visitor to the website, our web server automatically recognizes and collects the individual's domain name, not their email address. If you are merely a visitor to the website, any personal information about you is not collected except to the limited extent through the use of "cookies" as described below.

Griswold Communications also collects certain personal information with respect to its consumers in order to provide you with its services. Such personal information collected by Griswold Communications is kept strictly confidential and is used for internal purposes only, including, without limitation, providing you with requested services, improving our marketing and promotional efforts, statistically analyzing Griswold Communications usage, improving our content and site offerings and to customize our sites' content and layout. We believe these uses allow us to improve the website and better tailor it to meet our users' needs.

GRISWOLD COMMUNICATIONS DOES NOT SELL, LEND, RENT OR OTHERWISE DISCLOSE ANY PERSONAL INFORMATION TO ANY THIRD PARTIES. However, your personal information may be shared with affiliates, agents or contractors of Griswold Communications in connection with services that these individuals or entities perform for Griswold Communications.

Unfortunately, due to the existing regulatory environment, we cannot insure that all of your private communications and other personal information will never be disclosed in ways not otherwise described in this privacy policy. By way of example (without limiting the foregoing), we may be forced to disclose information to the government or third parties under certain circumstances, or third parties may unlawfully intercept or access transmissions or private communications. Further, we can (and you authorize us to) disclose any information about you to law enforcement or other government officials as we, in our sole discretion, believe necessary or appropriate. Therefore, although we use industry standard practices to protect your privacy, we do not promise, and you should not expect, that your personal information or private communications will remain private.

When you access the website, we may store some information on your computer. This information will be in the form of a "cookie" or similar file and will help us in many ways. For example, cookies allow us to tailor a web site or to better match your interest and preferences. Most internet browsers enable you to erase cookies from your computer hard drive, block all cookies or receive a warning before a cookie is stored. Please refer to your browser instructions or help screen to learn more about these functions.

The website may contain links to other internet web sites. We encourage all of our partners, contributors and third parties to implement policies and practices that respect the privacy of our users. However, Griswold Communications is not responsible for the privacy practices or the content of such web sites. Our policy only addresses the use and disclosure of information we collect from you. To the extent that you disclose your information to other parties, whether they are linked from the website, different rules may apply to their use or disclosure of the personal information you disclose to them. Because Griswold Communications does not control the privacy policies of third parties, you are subject to the privacy customs and policies of that third party. We encourage you to ask questions before you disclose your personal information to others.

Griswold Communications understands the importance of protecting childrens' privacy in the interactive, on-line world. Griswold Communications does not intentionally target or solicit to children thirteen (13) or younger for purposes of collecting personal information. The website may link to certain web sites which may target or solicit to children thirteen (13) or younger and may collect personal information. Those web sites are not governed by this privacy policy, but will (or should) have their own privacy policies that more fully explain how they respect and protect the privacy of children while providing them information, goods or services.

Please note that we review our privacy practices from time to time, and that such practices are subject to change. Griswold Communications reserves the right to change this privacy policy at any time by posting revisions on the website. We ask that you periodically review this page to insure familiarity with the most current version of our privacy policy. However, this privacy policy is not intended to, and does not create any contractual or other legal rights in or on behalf of any party.

Should you have other questions or concerns about this privacy policy, please call us at 712-778-2121 or send us an email at gctc@netins.net.